

Full Mouth Waxing

Course Preparation Materials

Course Introduction

The Full Mouth Waxing course is designed to teach laboratory technicians how to successfully fulfill their commitments and responsibilities to doctors and patients with state-of-the-art information and techniques in the area of full mouth reconstruction. Through Neuromuscular occlusal concepts taught at LVI, this course will guide the technician step by step from pre-operative to finished wax-up with emphasis on correct waxing and occlusal techniques.

The course will cover the following:

- ❑ Neuromuscular occlusal concepts
- ❑ Correct pre-operative work-up
- ❑ Use of pictures, facial plane indexes, HIP mounting and other architectural tools
- ❑ Waxing techniques and matrix transfer
- ❑ Check and double-check for success: bites, mounting and more!
- ❑ LVI Golden Proportion and Golden Shimbashi
- ❑ Correct form and function for anterior and posterior
- ❑ Techniques to develop natural occlusal anatomy
- ❑ Spruing and investing discussion

Armamentarium Needed

Each participant must bring the following materials to the course:

- Waxing and carving instruments
- Protective eye wear, loupes, lab coat, etc.
- Small carbide or diamond burs for trimming stone models

We will provide each student with pre-operative models (max & man). You will mount models to a new pre-established vertical index (bite). Pre-operative wax-ups will be done on the models and then transferred to die models (same mouth) where the case will be finished in wax, applying principles and techniques learned at the course.

After the course you will become skilled at completing a work-up of a full-mouth case, start to finish, in the wax. Emphasis will be placed on proper communication between doctor and patient, along with anatomy, contour, and neuromuscular occlusal concepts.

Some of these items may not be allowed as carry-on luggage. We recommend that you have any bags with instruments checked and do not carry them onto the plane.*

Please come with a clear, open mind and good attitude!
